Located just 10 minutes from the Las Vegas Strip, downtown offers a hip, unique take on the superior convention and meeting industry that makes this city shine.

THE SPACE

Where do meetings fit in here? Behind and including those famous downtown resorts and hotels are 7,700 hotel rooms and nearly 680,000 square feet of customizable meeting and convention facilities. That's not including the 98,000 square feet at Cashman Center and 450,000 square feet at World Market Center.

THE CULTURE

What's the vibe? With world-class performing arts at The Smith Center, design and style at World Market Center, a living gallery of street murals by internationally recognized artists, a handful of very Vegas museums, and free outdoor entertainment along the Fremont Street Experience, downtown is the cultural centerpiece of Las Vegas. The Fremont East Entertainment District anchors one of the city's most exciting food and beverage districts, where visitors will find many of Las Vegas' hottest restaurants, bars and retail destinations, including Downtown Container Park.

THE CONVENIENCE

How easy is this? Imagine strolling from one scene to the next without any need for wheels. You can leave the convention and hit a lounge, then dinner, be dazzled by Las Vegas' iconic neon lights, and see a live show on a rooftop—all within a block or two. In addition to being located just minutes from the Las Vegas Strip, downtown is easily accessible from McCarran International Airport and the rest of the valley with close proximity to both U.S. Highway 95 and Interstate 15.

THE COST

So, can you afford it? Small, medium or large, the downtown properties make the cost of meeting here very attractive. It's a perfect solution when you need to stretch your budget and still leave your clients feeling like they received comprehensive Las Vegas-style hospitality.

AN INSIDER'S GUIDE TO THE DOWNTOWNER SCENE

In recent years, downtown Las Vegas has experienced a tremendous amount of revitalization, transforming into one of the most dynamic, interesting and diverse parts of the city. Downtown has become an exciting food and beverage district, where many of the city's best and hippest new restaurants, bars, retail and microbreweries have opened in recent years, as well as an eclectic mix of old and new boutiques, galleries and other businesses.

Check out the creative collection of visual artists, writers and musicians in the Arts District and the Fremont East Entertainment District, and explore downtown's street gallery comprised of hundreds of murals and installation pieces from the Las Vegas Centennial, First Friday, Life Is Beautiful Festival and more. Stop into one of the area's nationally recognized cocktail bars where they're handcrafting some of the country's finest cocktails.

Visit uniquely Vegas museums, from The Mob Museum to the cultural corridor's Neon Museum and Old Mormon Fort. Take in classic lights in the city's original strip, the Fremont Street Experience. Enjoy a huge collection of luxury brands at the Las Vegas Premium Outlet mall, or venture a couple of blocks east to Main Street to peruse the city's best retro and vintage shops.

Downtown Las Vegas also serves as a hub for tech businesses, and is home to modern architecture like the Frank Gehry-designed Cleveland Clinic Lou Ruvo Center for Brain Health. A central area for the city's legal and justice industries, downtown is also home to Las Vegas City Hall, county and transportation services, and more.

Vintage Vegas experiences are also preserved throughout downtown, from old-school, fine-dining restaurants that once welcomed the Rat Pack to Las Vegas' oldest freestanding bar to throwback slot machines and games like Sigma Derby that still take coins.

If you visit on the first weekend of the month, check out First Friday, Las Vegas' monthly art and music experience. Then hit the streets on foot or bike to befriend an engaging mix of locals and visitors. Only then will you be a true downtowner.

DOWNTOWNER

INSIDER'S GUIDE TO FOOD

Downtown Las Vegas' dining is evolving so fast, it'll likely change by the time you finish reading this sentence. But we won't jump ahead just yet. Long-lasting casino favorites like Binion's Steak House, Vic & Anthony's at the Golden Nugget, and Hugo's Cellar still hold a special charm. And Fremont's Paradise Buffet and Café, Oscar's Steakhouse at The Plaza, and Siegel's 1941 at the El Cortez deliver that classic Las Vegas vibe in quality, quantity and décor. The Triple 7 Restaurant and Microbrewery at Main Street Station remains a popular spot for its fresh brews and big menu, and The Redwood Bar & Grill at the California Hotel & Casino serve seafood to impress discriminating Hawaiians. For a classic Italian menu that's anything but basic, there's Joe Vicari's Andiamo Italian Steakhouse at the D Las Vegas, and for a fresh update on the Las Vegas coffee shop, there's the S + O Restaurant at Downtown Grand, open for breakfast, lunch and dinner. Finally, you'd be remiss not to stop in at Du-Par's Restaurant and Bakery for its justly famous pies and pancakes.

All that being said, the downtown renaissance of cocktail lounges and stylish hangouts has been complemented by a wave of great new restaurants.

You'll find elements of the current farm-to-table cuisine movement downtown. There's also gourmet pizza, thoughtful Thai, an abundance of great burgers, nouveau Mexican, and chicken and waffles—you can even find a vegan take on the dish during VegeNation's weekend brunch. And it's getting better by the minute, with new restaurants constantly popping up.

The best restaurants in Las Vegas are no longer just on the Strip. A bold crop of eateries are taking over the city's "Best of" lists, from internationally established chefs like Pizza Rock's Tony Gemignani and the late Kerry Simon of Carson Kitchen to passionate first-time restaurateurs living their dreams. Downtown's dining scene is also home to a growing group of fiercely talented chefs who recently left some of the Strip's finest restaurants to create something new.

There's an impressive diversity to downtown's offerings as well. Mexican food with a twist and the city's best margaritas at La Comida; noodles and cocktails at Itsy Bitsy; Ramen & Whisky; an upscale food court of options at The Commissary at Downtown Grand; street food from around the world that's 100 percent plant-based at VegeNation; ridiculously good breakfast and lunch dishes at Eat, and more all exist in delicious harmony. Come downtown hungry, and leave happy.
